The compound obtained by replacing the aldehyde group in the molecule of the open-chain form of an aldose with a carboxylic acid group is called an aldonic acid.

eg:

!Diagram showing the transformation from an open-chain form of an aldose to an aldonic acid

Contributors

- Gamini Gunawardena from the OChemPal site (Utah Valley University)