Infrared spectroscopy (IR spectroscopy or Vibrational Spectroscopy) is the spectroscopy that deals with the infrared region of the electromagnetic spectrum, that is light with a longer wavelength and lower frequency than visible light. It covers a range of techniques, mostly based on absorption spectroscopy.

- Vibrational Modes
  - Stretching vibration

- Infrared Spectroscopy
  - Stretching vibration

- Raman Spectroscopy