A halonium ion is a species in which there is a halogen atom that possesses an octet of electrons but bears a formal charge of +1. Halonium ions are intermediates in the reaction of alkenes with halogens.

eg:

\[
\text{mechanism:}
\]

Contributors

- Gamini Gunawardena from the OChemPal site (Utah Valley University)