A phosphoglyceride is a saponifiable lipid, in the molecule of which one of the ester groups is derived from phosphoric acid and the other two from fatty acids, e.g.:

!Chemical structure of phosphatidylcholine

phosphatidylcholine

!Chemical structure of cephalin

cephalin

see also phospholipid

---

Contributors

- Gamini Gunawardena from the OChemPal site (Utah Valley University)