A reducing agent or reductant is a reagent employed to reduce (see, reduction) a given species. In the reaction between the reducing agent and the species, the reducing agent is oxidized (see oxidation).

eg: reduction of an aldehyde to an alkoxide ion by $\text{BH}_4$.

!Chemical reaction diagram

see also [oxidizing agent]

Contributors

- Gamini Gunawardena from the OChemPal site (Utah Valley University)